HERE are the winners of the Treasure Trail 'phone-in' competition (June 18 issue). The first 20 correct callers, who each receive a pocket radio, are: D. Green, Durham; S. Low, Kings Lynn; P. The next 30 correct callers each receive a programme pack: P. Spencer, Billericay; R. Taylor, Exmouth; D. Amor, Melksham; M. Truman, Sheffield; A. McGregor, P'boro; D. Kirk, Sheffield; R. JOE NEENAN: Probably the best goalkeeper in the Fourth Division last season, although he did cause me a heart-stopping moment in our 'six-pointer' at Bury in April. They wouldn't have scored a proper goal if they'd been playing for months but his blunder cost us the game.

But Joe has also saved us on many occasions and played extremely well for me. His reflexes are excellent and his angles and kicks are spot-on. He could improve on his crosses, though.

The 23-year-old is a chirpy character and a great influence in the dressing room.

ANDY KEELEY: Even though Andy played in most of our Fourth Division games last season, I released the right back on a free transfer. After helping the club to promotion, he must be disappointed by my decision but football is all about opinions and I believe I was right to let him go.

Andy, who has been unfortunate with injuries during his career, started with Spurs before moving North to Sheffield United.

NEIL POINTON: England youth squad member, Neil has the ability to go to the very top. He's a left-back in the Kenny Sansom and

FRONT COVER: West Brom's
Cyrille Regis in aerial combat with West Ham's Alvin Martin and Ray Stewart.

Derek Statham mould — he loves to go forward and has a great left foot.

Neil has just turned 18 but he's already proved to be a magnificent character. His commitment is total and he never gives up.

The young lad is always willing to help out — he's always the first to collect the bollards and balls after training even though that's a job usually done by the apprentices.

STEVE BAINES: Player/coach and captain of my side. Steve knows the games at this level inside out and he's a great professional who leads by example.

Paul O'Berg — plays the Eric Gates role for Scunthorpe.

I tried to sign him when I was manager of Barnsley. He's normally a central defender but because of the player shortage, he's played in midfield for me. He's big and strong and what he lacks in skill he makes up for in endeavour.

LES HUNTER: Plays off the centre-half and there was no better player in that position in the Fourth Division last season. A conscientious lad, he reads the game very well.

He may lack pace, but so did former England skipper Bobby
Moore and he was a great player.
Bobby, like Les, made up for that weakness by never giving opponents a chance to run him.
The 26-year-old was signed on a free from Chesterfield.

PAUL O'BERG: A Little fellow who plays an Eric Gates role behind our two main strikers. He reminds me of old Liverpool favourite Ian Callaghan.

He's a chirpy lad who's got bags of confidence. His main assets are his speed and close ball control.

Paul is a great player to have in your side. I remember he had his leg in plaster after being injured at Northampton last season and yet he returned to the side just three days after having the cast removed and played out of his skin!

NOEL PARKINSON: I was desperately sorry for Noel when he broke his leg in training and missed our promotion run-in because, before that, he was one of our best players.

He plays on the right side of midfield, has good vision, strikes the ball well and passes it accurately. The 24-year-old, who joined us from Mansfield, is our regular penalty-taker.

TOMMY GRAHAM: Brother of Leeds star Arthur Graham. I plucked him from the dole queue last season after he'd had unsuccessful spells at Halifax and Doncaster.

I signed him when I was at Barnsley so I knew the lad inside out. He usually plays as a striker, but performed very well for me in midfield. He's good with his back to goal and is dangerous in the air.

Former Sheffield Wednesday and Man. City star Denis Leman — has been a great help to young Neil Pointon.

'MY TEAM' is a great series where winning managers talk frankly about their team with a fascinating and often amusing player-by-player profile.

This week the spotlight falls on former Leeds and England striker Allan Clarke — the man in charge of Scunthorpe United.

by Allan Clarke

I HATE being proved wrong but I was more than delighted when the Scunthorpe players made me eat my words.

I told them when I took over midway through last season that I didn't think the team was good enough to win promotion to the Third Division.

In my opinion, the squad wasn't big enough. To be successful you've got to have strength in depth. We didn't have that.

For Scunthorpe's most important game for over a decade — the last match of the season at Mansfield — I had to field two apprentices who had never played in the first team before.

On top of that, of the four players who played in the middle of the park, not one of them was a natural midfield player!

The balance at the club was non-existent. I've had to play a lot of my men out of position because we simply didn't have the staff.

The lads who achieved promotion should be given the freedom of the town of Scunthorpe. It was a great achievement and I'm proud of them.

Last season we had no reserve team and my two apprentices had to play for local amateur sides in order to get a game at weekends.

But this term I'm going to get the reserve team going again and strengthen my squad. I believe you need at least 16 players and that's what I'm aiming for.

When I left Leeds a year ago, I said I'd only join a club with ambition that matched mine. The Scunthorpe chairman sold the place to me.

For the past 10 to 12 years, Scunthorpe have been regarded as a bit of a footballing joke. I'm determined they will lose that tag and we've gone some way to doing that. The lads have brought some pride back to the town and club.

CLAN

DENIS LEMAN: Started his career at Manchester City before moving to Hillsborough where he was released on a free by 'Big Jack'. Denis did a great job for us on the left of midfield last season and was a big help to young Neil Pointon.

His experience has rubbed off on Neil and he covers for the youngster when he goes up front. His awareness is excellent and he has a tremendous shot. It surprises me that he didn't do it at the higher level.

I sometimes have a go at him for not getting forward enough and he tends to go to sleep at times.

CHRIS COWLING: Because he wears number nine on his back, people expect him to score goals every week, but he's our target man. He reminds me of my old Leeds team-mate Mick Jones. He's so unselfish.

Chris is just 20 and still learning his trade but he's got a great future ahead of him. There's no better target man around. I encourage my players to express themselves on the pitch so I'm trying to persuade him to make himself heard. He's too quiet for my liking.

STEVE CAMMACK: A natural finisher and that's one thing a manager can't coach into his players. I don't know what's happened through his career but Steve has the skill to play in the top flight. He's quick and sharp.

Perhaps his previous managers haven't been able to get the best out of him. He finished up as the Fourth Division's top scorer with 25 goals.

ALAN BOXALL: A physics teacher who turned out as centre-half last season and did a magnificent job alongside Les Hunter. During term time, we only see him on match days but he has adapted very well.

Alan has a tremendous long throw and, when we get a throw in the last third of the field, it's like a corner for us. The 28-year-old is over 6ft and very good in the air. He's witty and has a great sense of humour.

BOB OATES: Released on a free transfer at the end of the season after making more than 300 League appearances at the Old Show Ground.

PAUL JOHNSON: My reserve team goalkeeper who I expect to put pressure on Joe Neenan next season. Because we didn't have a second string side last term, I didn't see that much of him.

• NEXT WEEK: Second Division Champions Queen's Park Rangers come under the spotlight through the eyes of Terry Venables and Allan Harris.

Right: Scunthorpe's leading scorer last season Steve Cammack — a natural finisher.

Woods in the wilderness

THE absence of goalkeeper Chris Woods from England's tour party to Australia came as more of a surprise to Norwich manager Ken Brown than the inclusion of his winger, Mark Barham.

"In my opinion Chris was playing as well as anybody in the country during the second half of last season, and that includes Peter Shilton," says Ken.

"When we looked to be in real danger of relegation, he turned in a few performances which were out of this world. In fact, looking back now, some of the saves he made could well have been the difference between us going down and staying up.

"We might not be the most fashionable club in the country, and maybe that's why our players have missed out on representative honours in the past.

"But with lads around like Mark Barham, Chris, John Deehan and Dave Watson, we're out to change that."

Norwich goalkeeper Chris Woods — his omission from the England squad to tour Australia surprised his manager Ken Brown.

Vintage United on video

TWENTY-five years after the Munich air crash ripped apart Britain's most promising football team, Manchester United reached the top again by winning the FA Cup last month.

You can now follow the story of football's most famous club from its origins back in 1878 to the present day in Thorn EMI Video's 'The Manchester United Story'.

Produced by Michael Barratt in association with the football club, it is the only video cassette to document the history of this celebrated club.

It includes interviews with Bobby Charlton, George Best and the creator of the Busby Babes, Sir Matt Busby, and there is historic footage of the team's many victories, including the 1948 FA Cup win, the 1952 Championship and the 1968 European Cup triumph.

WHILE his Everton team-mates are enjoying their summer break, Andy King is fighting to get fit for the start of what he describes as a 'crunch' season.

The unlucky midfielder has been out of action since the beginning of March with a leg injury, but feels he is now well on the road to recovery.

And with his contract at Goodison Park up at the end of next season he's determined to reproduce the form he showed before the injury and help set Everton back on the glory trail.

Says Andy: "It's going to be a very important season for me because I'm getting to the age where I desperately need a taste of success."

"I'm 27 next month and want to win something before I get much older. If I can't do that with Everton this season, and can't see it happening in the near future, I may look elsewhere."

Andy was enjoying one of the best spells of his career last season, and with Everton in the last eight of the FA Cup and looking a good bet for a European place, the future looked rosy.

But just a week before the FA Cup Sixth Round date with Manchester United, disaster struck. Following a collision with Sunderland's Iain Munro, Andy was carried off with badly damaged ligaments.

Swaziland shoot-out

TOTTENHAM won a penalty shoot-out against Manchester United to decide their four-match series of exhibition matches in Swaziland.

Spurs won the final match 2-0 with goals from Steve Perryman and Gary Mabbutt.

Still in Africa, Coventry went down 4-2 to Zimbabwe Saints, Steve Whitton and Steve Hunt getting their goals.

CORRECTION

IN our 'Club Fact File' series we said that Chester's heaviest defeat was 5-0 against Blackpool in the Milk Cup. It should have read 5-1. Hence the Milk Cup scorers should have read: Tom Sloan 1, John Thomas 1.

In the same series we stated that Trevor Swinburne and Alan Shoulder had made 46 and Paul Haigh 44 appearances for Carlisle. It should have read: Trevor Swinburne (42), Alan Shoulder (42) and Paul Haigh (40).

The same applied to the Cambridge and Charlton 'Fact Files'.

At Cambridge, Jamie Murray made 42 appearances and Steve Fallon 41. At Charlton Nicky Johns and Carl Harris made 42 appearances and Les Berry 39.

THERE'S no such thing as a summer break for Aston Villa utility player Eamonn Deacy.

As soon as the season was over, Eamonn was back in Galway to lend a hand in the family's grocery and fish business.

"Lying around on the beach in Majorca doesn't appeal to me at all," says Eamonn, youngest of ten children. "I do deliveries, go to market and bag a few spuds!"

KING-SIZED TASK FOR ANDY

And to add insult to injury, his Everton team-mates were knocked out of the Cup at Old Trafford by a Frank Stapleton goal in the dying seconds.

Andy was hoping to be back in action before the end of last season and was looking forward to helping Everton's drive for Europe.

"But there was a slight complication and I was forced to sit out the rest of the season and watch our European hopes slip away," he says.

"That was another year wasted and I found myself saying, 'Oh well, maybe next year'... I've been saying that for the last nine years.

"And so for the first time in my career I've sat down at the start of the season and thought about what I want to achieve during the next year.

"I want to help Everton win something, or be in a position where I can say success is just around the corner."

Andy King — preparing for crunch season.

Geordie joy in Japan

NEWCASTLE may have just missed out on promotion to the First Division last season, but they picked up a trophy in Japan last month.

They drew 0-0 with Brazil's Botofogo in the final match of a four nations club tournament in Tokyo, but two wins and two draws in their four fixtures was good enough to earn them the Japan Cup.

TREVOR Gould, brother of new Coventry boss Bobby, has a new job himself, taking over as manager of Southern League Aylesbury.

FORMER Notts County goalscorer Les Bradd has joined non-League Kettering Town, and his debut will be in a pre-season friendly against his previous club Wigan who gave him a free transfer.

LIVERPOOL concluded their Far East tour with a 3-0 victory over Thailand in Bangkok, Alan Kennedy, Sammy Lee and Graeme Souness scoring the goals.

Girls... who's the player of your dreams?

WHO is the footballer you would most like to spend 90 minutes with?

That's the question we're putting to soccer's growing band of female fans.

We want you to write to Match Weekly to tell us who, in your opinion, is football's dishiest player... AND WHY!

We'll publish the best letters in a future issue — and we'll reward the writers with a picture of their handsome hero (autographed if possible).

Is it the boyish good looks of Gary Shaw that turn your legs to jelly. Or maybe his Villa team-mate Tony Morley is the man to make your heart beat faster.

Then again it might be Gary Bailey's blond locks or that Kevin Keegan curly perm that sends shivers down your spine.

If it's legs you're interested in, maybe Phil Neal's sexy knees or Glenn Hoddle's rippling muscles turn you on.

Your choice doesn't have to be a British player. If you prefer the Latin good-looks of Paola Rossi or the rugged features of Karl Heinz Rummenigge then write and tell us.

So put pen to paper now and send your letters to My Dishiest Player, Match Weekly, Stirling House, Bretton, Peterborough PE3 8DZ.

CROWDS CRASH

THERE were some poor opening match attendances when the North American Soccer League got under way.

Tampa Bay Rowdies had their lowest crowd for several seasons when only 10,025 turned up for the clash with Tulsa Roughnecks.

Montreal fared even worse. Their 6,460 crowd for the match against Tampa Bay was their lowest ever for an opening fixture.

NEARLY 20,000 fans filled the Cleveland Coliseum to watch Cleveland Force eliminate Chicago Sting from the Indoor League Quarter-Final play-offs.

Four years ago Cleveland took over 85,000 dollars in the whole of the season, but takings of more than 180,000 from this one evening gives a firm indication of the ever-increasing popularity of indoor football in Cleveland.

Owner Bart Wolstein, despite losing more than three million dollars in the past three years, remains firm in his commitment to the team and Cleveland.

ANOTHER new President, a new League office, two new teams and the adoption of the shoot-out procedure to decide a drawn game, heralded the 49th season of the American Soccer League.

This veteran League has had more ups and downs than Humpty Dumpty, but still manages to be put back together again.

I saw the first leg of the

KEN FURPHY'S AMERICAN UP-DATE

Semi-Finals last season between the Georgia Generals and the Detroit Express along with only 200 other spectators.

Detroit went on to beat Oklahoma in the Final before 40,000 fans. The team owner sold the game to General Motors for 50,000 dollars and then gave away the tickets.

The Georgia Generals, Rochester Lancers and Nashville Diamonds went into hibernation during the winter and never woke up, but the defunct Jacksonville Tea Men resurfaced and the Dallas Americans took over the Texas entry following the amalgamation of Dallas Tornados and Tampa Bay Rowdies.

THE arrival of former England star Tony Currie into the newly-formed Canadian Soccer League could boost the League's hopes of attracting Montreal, Vancouver and Toronto from the troubled North American competition.

To tempt a player of Currie's class into the League has been regarded as something of a coup, although there are many cynics who claim that the Queen's Park Rangers player thought he had signed for the wrong Toronto team.

Toronto Blizzard play in the North American League while Tony's side, Toronto Nationals, operate in the Canadian League.

Frank Pike, formerly from Plymouth, has taken over as general manager and coach of the Nationals and Eddie Firmani is quickly back at work after his abrupt departure from the Montreal Manics, by simply moving to Inter Montreal.

VANCOUVER Whitecaps began their North American Soccer League campaign in fine style with a 3-0 win over Fort Lauderdale despite the absence of Frans Thijssen, Peter Beardsley and Dave Watson.

THE San Diego Sockers and Chicago Sting have notified the Major Indoor Soccer League that they will not be competing in the League next season.

A 46-League game commitment is cited as the main reason for the decision, but rumour is rife that the owners were none too pleased with the standard of refereeing.

Soccer fanatic Rod Stewart — favourite of the players.

ROD Stewart is top of the pops with the soccer stars.

The football crazy superstar, who regularly jets across the Atlantic to watch his beloved Scotland, is the favourite of many top names in the game.

'Match' investigated the musical tastes of 50 stars and discovered that Rod was number one in the players hit parade. No fewer than 11 named him as their top artist.

Chartbuster Rod is currently in Britain at the start of a worldwide tour and one player hoping to get tickets for one of his concerts is West Brom's midfield tiger Gary Owen.

The former England Under-21 skipper admits: "Rod is my number one. I have got all his albums."

"Whenever he's on tour in this country I try to see him because his performances are so special. When he goes on stage the whole place erupts. He has a tremendous rapport with his audience.

"I've been to five Rod Stewart concerts and thoroughly enjoyed every one. They have an atmosphere all of their own.

During his stay at Manchester City Gary met his singing idol. He says: "Myself and Denis Law were invited backstage after one of his performances. It was a great thrill.

"He asked us back to his hotel for a party and I was very disappointed I couldn't make it," says Gary.

During Scotland's World Cup campaign in Spain Rod Stewart was a regular visitor to the team headquarters and Ipswich star John Wark remembers: "He was football nuts. It was all he wanted to talk about.

"You often wonder what sort of people superstars like Rod are like, but he was very down to earth and was just one of the lads.

"As well as liking him as a person I'm also a keen fan of his singing and I've got quite a few of his records," says John.

George Benson — among his admirers are Arsenal's Chris Whyte and Scottish full-back Richard Gough.

"At the moment I'm also into Bryan Ferry, Roxy Music and the Australian band Men at Work. Their album 'Business as Usual' is a particular favourite of mine."

John is also a big friend of fellow Scot B A Robertson and he says: "I met him at the BBC while I was recording Top of the Pops. Both of us are from Glasgow and we have a lot in common.

"I like all sorts of music and have a varied record collection. I don't get to as many live concerts as I would like, because Ipswich is a bit out of the way.

"The last one I went to was with Paul Mariner, but he's a bit of a heavy metal freak and I'm not really into that sort of music."

Watford midfielder Les Taylor must have one of the biggest record collections of all professional footballers. He reckons he's got more than 1,000 albums.

He says: "I started buying records when I was an apprentice at Oxford United and the collection has built up from there.

"In those days I was very keen on David Bowie and the first LP I bought was Hunky Dory. That was soon followed by Ziggy Stardust, but I must admit I'm not too keen on his recent stuff."

Surprisingly Les doesn't go for his Watford chairman Elton John as his favourite artist and he admits: "I used to like him more as a singer before I joined the club.

"Like Bowie, I enjoy his early material, but he's told me that his next album is really good... although I don't know whether he's just trying to promote the sales!"

Les has just returned from a club tour of China with his team-mates and his chairman treated the players to an impromptu concert during a party at the end of the trip.

"It was great fun. All the players joined in the singalong," says Les, who missed two of Watford's four games through injury.

"I saw the chairman in concert at Watford Town Hall last season and really enjoyed it. I'm hoping to get tickets for his Wembley date in July.

"I love going to concerts and when I was at Oxford I used to go regularly. The best ones I went to were Genesis, Joe Jackson and The Stranglers.

"My tastes vary but at the moment I like listening to Men at Work, Duran Duran, Genesis and Police."

And to help him listen to even more music Les brought a personal hi-fi back from China, so that he can keep in tune while he does some light jogging to keep in trim during the close season.

Young Luton defender Paul Elliott names the chart-topping album Thriller by Michael Jackson as his current favourite record. The 18-year-old says: "It's the best I've heard for a long time.

"Michael Jackson is a great favourite of mine and I like soul and reggae music."

Southampton's long serving midfield star Nick Holmes admits that his tastes range from classical to heavy rock. "It just depends what sort of mood I'm in," he says.

"Most of the records I've got are by Queen and Supertramp but I don't buy as many records as I used to.

"I suppose Queen are my favourite group and my all-time favourite record must be their smash hit Bohemian Rhapsody. That was the song which really pushed them into the limelight.

"I've seen Queen in concert in London and thoroughly enjoyed it, although I'm getting too old for that sort of thing now."

Nick has also been to a Rod Stewart gig, but he admits: "I only went because my wife wanted to go."

Of the more recent music, Nick enjoys Spandau Ballet and Heaven 17. He says: "I've got their latest albums and enjoy both of them."

Pop superstars were no strangers to Southampton when former England defender Dave Watson was at The Dell. Nick says: "Dave was a big friend of Status Quo and guitarist Rik Parfitt was a regular visitor."

Liverpool's extrovert goalkeeper Bruce Grobbelaar is typically unconventional in his musical tastes. He lists Dire Straits and a group with the unlikely name of Doug and the Slugs!

George Benson, who currently has a hit called Lady Love Me (One More Time) riding up the charts also proved a popular singer. Stars who named him include Stoke winger Mark Chamberlain, Richard Gough of Dundee United and Arsenal's Chris Whyte.

When Stoke goalkeeper Peter Fox was asked to pick his top singer he chose Portsmouth striker Alan Biley. He obviously has memories of the Rod Stewart lookalike's brief spell at The Potteries!

Superstar Paul McCartney is admired by fellow scouser Kevin Sheedy of Everton.

Below: Newcastle defender Jeff Clarke proved to be one of the bargain buys of last season. He had an outstanding first season in the heart of the Geordies' defence having been released by North East rivals Sunderland.

WEE Archie Gemmill, the pocket-sized battleship who generalised Derby's successful fight against relegation, was the Second Division's outstanding player last season.

The former Scotland captain, who appears to thrive in the face of adversity, had an average rating of 7.64 over the season — based on marks from League results in Match Weekly's exclusive 'Match Facts' section.

Not even the overwhelming presence of the dynamic Kevin Keegan in the success-starved North East could deny the balding veteran his hour of glory in his second spell at the Baseball Ground.

Below: The irrepressible John Burridge was the top goalkeeper in the Second Division.

While Peter Taylor masterminded Derby's escape from disaster from the sidelines, Archie, who had been recruited from Third Division Wigan, provided the inspiration to ignite the club's race to safety.

Such was the recovery at Derby that many pundits are confidently forecasting that a revival of the halcyon days of the seventies are just around the corner.

In many ways, former England favourite Kevin Keegan did a similar job at Newcastle where his shock arrival from Southampton awakened the slumbering giant of a club and rekindled Geordie pride and passion.

And he didn't let them down, scoring twenty goals and leading them to within an ace of returning to the First Division.

His average rating of 7.32 earned him second place, just ahead of his St James' Park team-mate Jeff Clarke.

He was snapped up on a free transfer from local rivals Sunderland in the close season, and he proved what a wise investment manager Arthur Cox made by emerging as the division's top defender.

Another veteran campaigner, Leeds player-manager Eddie Gray, showed that he is still more than a match for the younger generation with some outstanding performances in his new role, sharing fourth place with Fulham's Ray Houghton.

The former West Ham youngster was regarded as the best free transfer signing of the season as he produced a string of impressive performances as Fulham went within a whisker of achieving promotion for the second successive season.

Although down in 14th place overall, Wolves' character John Burridge was the division's top goalkeeper with an average mark of 6.97.

WEEKLY

Wales silence the samba beat!

The cauldron of Brazilian fans brought a carnival atmosphere to Milnes Park ... but the party ended after just four minutes of the match when Welsh midfielder Brenno Bryan put his side into the lead. Brazil pulled a goal back in the second half, but rarely showed the dazzling football which has become their trademark in recent years and were backed to leave South Wales with a heavy defeat.

Above: The Brazilian side which promised so much but gave so little. Only a controversial goal by substitute Paulo Isidoro mid-way through the second half saved the former World Champions' blushes and denied the Welsh a deserved victory.

Right: An agonising moment for Welsh forward Gordon Davies as he sees his shot lob over Keeper Leao's crossbar. Only seconds before, a Jeremy Charles' header hit the post with the Brazilian defence all at sea Far right: Skipper Joey Jones makes sure Brazil centre forward Careca is going nowhere with this firm tackle which was typical of the fighting spirit showed by Mike England's Welsh Dragons.

STAR VIEW

No 8 CHARLIE NICHOLAS V IAN RUSH

THIS week new Arsenal signing Charlie Nicholas and Liverpool's goal machine Ian Rush comes under the 'Star View' microscope.

Both players have proved to be prolific scorers over the last couple of seasons, but who's the best? The verdict comes from Rangers' Northern Ireland international John McClelland, who has played against both Charlie and Ian on numerous occasions over the last few seasons.

Don't miss 'Star View' every week in 'Match' — it's the series that's got everyone talking...

IAN RUSH

Age: 21

Signed: 1977 straight from school

CHARLIE Nicholas and Ian Rush are the most lethal finishers around... their records speak for themselves.

The England-bound Scot scored an incredible 51 League and cup goals for Celtic last season, while Ian notched up 30 for the second year running.

They are both natural goalscorers, but with different styles. Charlie is more artistic than the Welshman, who is a deadly marksman.

Ian has proved over the last two years that he can score goals consistently in the English First Division... Charlie has to do that next season with Arsenal.

But I'm sure he'll be equal to the task and, although it won't happen overnight, he will soon produce the form which made him the most wanted player in Britain.

He's very quick in and around the box and only needs half a yard of space to strike. He's not the best player in the air, but more than makes up for it on the ground.

Charlie was in tremendous form last season and it seemed that everything he did turned to gold. I was very impressed with him.

He tends to drift out of games when his side is not playing very well, but that is the time you have to be on your guard when you're marking him. He has the ability to do something unexpected and suddenly turn the game.

I enjoy playing against him because it's a great challenge... you can't afford to leave him alone for a second.

Like many people north of the border I was quite surprised that Charlie decided to leave Celtic and try his luck in England.

I thought he should have probably spent another season or two in Scotland before making the move, but it's his decision and he obviously feels it's the right time to go.

He has now revealed that he will be signing for Arsenal and I'm sure he will do well there, although it may take him some time to settle in.

At Highbury he will form a new partnership with England international Tony Woodcock and I hope they hit it off because they will be very exciting to watch.

He is obviously going to be a marked man and Terry Butcher and Graham Roberts gave him a taste of what he's likely to get when Scotland played England at Wembley recently.

But although he didn't do himself justice that night, Charlie will be able to handle the tight marking once he settles in at his new club.

Charlie had the chance to sign for Liverpool where he would have teamed up with Ian Rush — and that could have been quite a formidable partnership.

Ian is a tremendous player and probably one of the best strikers I've played against. He's very quick, strong and a clinical finisher.

I played against Ian a few years ago when he was at Chester and I was still at Mansfield, and I could tell then that he was going to go a long way.

He was a bit raw, but the potential was there and playing in a successful side like Liverpool has really brought the best out of him.

Ian has done marvellously well to establish himself at Anfield and he's proved to be the perfect partner for Kenny Dalglish. He works very hard and not only does he score a lot of goals, but he creates many for other players.

He has a great turn of speed which makes him a very difficult player to mark. Defenders don't like fast forwards who run at them... and that's what Ian's good at.

Overall I think the Liverpool striker has the edge over Charlie because of his all-round ability. He is a perfect team man whereas Charlie is more of an individual whose job has been solely to score goals.

But the talented Scot has gone to England to finish his football education and I think it will bring the best out of him... I can't wait to see the end product.

BILLY Stark spoke this week of his surprise move to Aberdeen and declared: "I want to get my hands on some medals."

In eight years at St. Mirren Billy collected just one major honour — a First Division Champions' medal in 1977 — but now he hopes his fortunes will change.

"Aberdeen have established themselves as the number one club in Scotland and I have a great chance to start picking up some honours with them," says the 26-year-old striker.

"It's a dream move for me when you take into consideration what the club achieved last season and how they overshadowed the Glasgow giants, Celtic and Rangers."

"I'm sorry to be leaving St. Mirren after eight happy years, but I needed a fresh start and couldn't have picked a better club than Aberdeen."

And Billy believes that playing for 'The Dons' could also boost his chances of making Jock Stein's Scottish squad.

He says: "Obviously playing for a bigger club I'm going to be in the spotlight more than I was at St. Mirren."

I want to get my hands on some medals.

"It's every professional's ambition to play for his country but if that happens it will be a bonus, because all I'm concerned about at the moment is establishing myself in the Aberdeen side."

"And that's not going to be easy because they have such a strong pool of players — many of whom are internationals."

But manager Alex Ferguson has told me that I have the same chance of being picked as everyone else in the squad and it's up to me to show what I can do.

Ironically it was the Aberdeen boss who helped Billy launch his soccer career eight years ago when he was in charge of St. Mirren.

Recalls Billy: "I was playing for a local side — Anniesland Waverley — and he came along to watch me and signed me on."

"I worked with him at Love Street for three years and he had a great influence on me during that time. He always encouraged me and taught me a lot."

"I felt then he was a great manager and he has proved that in the way he has transformed Aberdeen into the top Scottish team."

"I have the utmost respect for him and the fact that he's in charge of Aberdeen influenced my decision to sign."

"I knew that he thought quite a lot of me as a player, but it was still a great surprise when he came in to buy me."

The team that pipped Aberdeen to the Premier Division title, Dundee United, also put in a bid for Billy but couldn't match the 'Dons' offer.

Says Billy: "I didn't know of Dundee United's interest until after I signed for Aberdeen. But given the choice I would have gone for the 'Dons'."

Billy Stark — heading for the top with Aberdeen.

BOUNTY HUNTER BILLY!

Stark aims to strike it rich with Aberdeen

"It was nice to know that two of the country's top clubs wanted to sign me and I hope to prove Alex Ferguson right for paying £70,000 for my services."

Billy says he was getting into a rut at St. Mirren and felt the time was right for a change. "Eight years is a long time to stay at one club and I needed a fresh challenge," he says.

"No disrespect to the club, I was very happy there and I'll always be grateful to them for the kind way they treated me. It was a sad day when I went to pick my bags up for the last time."

"There will always be a place in my heart for St. Mirren and they will be the first team I look for when the results come up on Saturday afternoons."

"But there was no way I could turn down a move to a big club like Aberdeen and such was the financial situation at St. Mirren that they really needed the money."

"My contract was due to expire at the end of this month and I was waiting for St. Mirren to make me a new offer, but in my own mind I knew a move would be the best thing for me."

"I'm a very ambitious person and want to win things and my chances of doing that are far greater at Aberdeen than St. Mirren."

Billy did come close to picking up a medal last season. St. Mirren reached the Semi-Final of the Scottish FA Cup only to lose to Rangers after a replay.

"That was bitterly disappointing because we really deserved to win the first game," he recalls.

"Overall we had quite a good season, but although we did well in the cup competitions we were never in contention for the League title."

"That's often been the case at St. Mirren and I can't really see that changing in the near future."

Billy admits that a move to England would have appealed to him and says: "If an English club had made an offer for me I would have seriously considered it."

"I think most players in Scotland would like the chance to play for an English club and I'm no exception."

"But I am very impressed with Aberdeen and the professional way it is run and I'm sure I have made the right decision."

"They had a tremendous season winning the Scottish Cup and the European Cup Winners' Cup and with so many good youngsters at the club, I think they will stay at the top for a while yet."

"There are many good players there and I particularly admire Peter Weir who I played with at St. Mirren. I know him very well and that should help me settle in at the club."

Billy believes that playing alongside top class players at Pittodrie will improve his own game and hopefully bring him international honours to add to the one Under-21 cap he gained five years ago.

"When I won my first cap I thought there might be a few more to come, but unfortunately it didn't work out that way. Now I have another chance to prove myself and the future looks very exciting."

● FOURTH Division Hartlepool had the dubious distinction last season of having the lowest average home gate in the Football League of 1,369.

● ONCE again Manchester United boasted the biggest average home gate in the country of 41,573, nearly 7,000 ahead of champion Liverpool.

KEVIN Keegan brought the fans flocking back to Newcastle last season like some modern day Pied Piper.

The magnetic personality and infectious enthusiasm of the former England skipper paved the way for a Geordie revival that saw the Second Division club's gates increase by a massive 144,000 on the previous year.

Even though Newcastle's late surge failed to land them a ticket back to the big time, the little maestro's presence in the North East guaranteed that the St James' Park terraces lost that eerie look of recent times.

In a season when attendances throughout the Football League fell by more than one million — that's half the loss sustained last year if one is searching for a crumb of consolation — a third of the 92 clubs still managed to increase their attendances with Newcastle leading the way.

They averaged more than 24,000 last season, bettering the previous year's mark by more than 8,000 to prove that a star player in the Keegan mould offers an instant draw card.

But success doesn't guarantee more fans. League Champions Liverpool were nearly 5,000 down while Manchester United,

GATES — the ups and the downs last season Research by Melvyn Beck although still the best supported team in the land, lost more than 62,000 despite reaching Wembley twice and finishing third in the First Division.

United's poor old rivals Manchester City tumbled into the Second Division losing more than 152,000 customers on the way.

Relegated Swansea also slumped by more than 137,000, just a year after topping the Division One gates table with an increase of 105,000, an illustration there of the fluctuating fortunes of football.

Only four clubs, including the three promoted teams, Norwich, Watford and Luton, increased their attendances.

The exception was Stoke City whose early season promise encouraged more than 41,000 extra fans to filter through the Victoria Ground turnstiles.

Not surprisingly, Watford produced the biggest increase and over the past two seasons they have attracted 152,000 more supporters through their gates.

Nine clubs in the Second Division improved their gates, the Keegan roadshow probably being instrumental in that.

Even relegated Burnley were up by 29,000, and Derby, bottom of the table for so long until Peter Taylor waved his magic wand, had the third biggest increase in the division.

And no doubt Danish star Allan Simonsen was influential in the improvement of attendances at Charlton during his short stay at The Valley.

Third Division Champions Portsmouth had the second largest increase in the country — 126,000 — but their Fourth Division adversaries, Wimbledon, actually suffered a decrease even though they were relegated the previous season.

And what about Crewe who improved their attendances despite seeking re-election to the League once again.

Up in Scotland, all but three clubs in the Premier Division, including Glasgow giants Rangers increased their attendances, with FA Cup winners Aberdeen leading the way with 79,000 extra fans.

That meant that more than 171,000 extra fans were attracted to Premier Division matches which is good news for the purse string holders north of the border.

Allan Simonsen — instrumental in attracting more fans to Charlton during his short stay.

THE art of scoring goals is as valuable to a team as a Rembrandt painting to a gallery.

Goals are a priceless commodity in an age where improving defensive techniques have tended to smother the burning ambitions of strikers.

Glittering contemporaries in this so vital aspect of football, like Jimmy Greaves, Denis Law and Bobby Charlton, were synonymous with goals.

They left classic footsteps to follow and there have been few players in recent times capable of filling them.

But there is one young man who could emerge as a kind of Cinderella to fit those moulds to perfection.

That's 21-year-old Charlie Nicholas, the most wanted man since Jesse James, who aims to seek his fame and fortune South of the border with Arsenal after learning his trade at Celtic.

Hailed as the new Kenny Dalglish, the superb artist he drooled over on the Parkhead terraces as a schoolboy, Charlie barely did himself justice on his first appearance at Wembley in Scotland's disappointing 2-0 defeat by England earlier this month.

But in two full seasons in the Scottish Premier Division, with a broken leg forming an unappetising sandwich filling, he has proved that he has that rare gift and flair in front of goal that so many teams and strikers envy.

He has scored 46 goals in 68 Premier Division appearances in the famous green and white hoops of Celtic and, although ten of them have come via the penalty spot, it still represents an impressive striking rate.

Add to that tally a further 29 in domestic Cup matches, and it's not surprising that so many of England's leading clubs battled for his signature.

Charlie rather modestly accepts that luck

RANGERS' central defender Craig Paterson witnessed at first hand last season the kind of destruction Charlie Nicholas can cause and will probably be pleased that he won't be facing the ' Tartan Terror ' next term.

"I don't think anyone will need worry that Charlie won't produce the goods in England," he says.

"He has proved himself against the best teams in Scotland and he has the ability to cause problems anywhere.

"He's very unpredictable in the way he can produce something very special.

"I feel he's at his most dangerous when he goes deep in search of the ball and finds the space to run at defenders."

and the quality service from his team-mates are two of the more important ingredients behind his success story.

"Goalscoring is not something that you can work on. I suppose in many ways it's like a gift, but you have to rely on a certain amount of luck and the assistance of your team-mates to make it count," he says.

"I've been scoring goals ever since I started playing in the local parks as a six-year-old and it continued when I began competitive football at the age of about nine.

"I suppose that little Jimmy Johnstone was something of an idol at that time, although in later years I became a fan of Kenny Dalglish as I stood on the terraces at Parkhead.

"I owed a lot to the staff at Celtic as I moved through the different ranks to reach the senior side in August 1980, but although you can work on different aspects of scoring in training, you can't really put scoring instincts into a player.

"It's having the knack of being in the right place at the right time.

"But when you are in goalscoring situations, you must have confidence.

"Goalkeepers shouldn't have a chance if you are about six yards out and you have got to get that to the forefront of your mind.

"You must have confidence in your ability, but it's also important not to allow yourself to get downhearted if you fail to score.

"So long as the team wins and you play well, then that's all that matters.

"I don't do anything specific in training. All teams practice shooting and heading during the course of a week's work. It's out there on a Saturday when it matters."

England's Bobby Charlton (left) and Scotland's Denis Law (above), two goalscoring legends Charlie hopes to emulate in the years to come.

TON-UP SCOTS!

GOALS: How many and who scored them in Scotland last season.

Scoring spree takes Scottish League by storm

DUNDEE United and Celtic, the top two teams in the Scottish Premier Division, led a goals charge North of the border last season.

They both clocked up 90 goals — a Premier Division record — as Scottish strikers in all three Divisions enjoyed a more profitable time.

The Scottish League total was up by more than 100 on the previous season with an increase of 31 in the Premier even though only United, Celtic and Aberdeen scored more goals.

It was mainly the dramatically improved firepower of new Champions Dundee United — they scored 29 more — that brought the top section a plus figure.

Davie Dodds, with 22, and 16-goal Ralph Milne were the principal performers as United took the title to Tannadice for the first time in their history.

Despite the goal-grabbing exploits of Charlie Nicholas, Celtic could only boast an extra 11 goals, while FA Cup holders Aberdeen increased their tally by five.

At the other end of the scale, Motherwell were down by no fewer than 53 goals, having discovered life a lot tougher and far less charitable than in the First Division, where they had swept to the title the previous season on a tide of 92 goals.

The biggest increase in the Scottish League came from First Division Raith who hit 33 more goals even though they only occupied a mid-table position, and there were also big improvements by First Division Airdrie and Partick — relegated from the Premier last year — and Second Division Queen of the South.

Following Dundee United and Celtic home in the scoring stakes were Hearts, who will be joining the big boys next season after finishing runners-up to St Johnstone in the First Division.

Scottish youth international John Robertson topped the charts for them with 21 as Hearts accumulated 79 goals.

WITH the price of programmes going up alarmingly it makes me cross to see clubs like Oxford and Tottenham putting news from other clubs in their programmes. If they can't find anything to write about they should make the programme — and the price smaller! All the better for us collectors.

David Richardson,
Borehamwood, Herts.

MY classroom poll to find the most popular player produced this result:

Bryan Robson (Man. Utd) 8 votes, Kenny Dalglish (Liverpool) 6, Ray Wilkins (Man. Utd) 3, Paul Walsh (Luton) 2, Paul Mariner (Ipswich) 1, Norman Whiteside (Man. Utd) 1.
Matthew Carr, Chorlton cum Hardy, Manchester.

WATFORD will be a revelation in the UEFA Cup next season because their long ball game will catch out the Continental teams.

Inexperience is no handicap at this level as Aston Villa and Nottingham Forest showed in winning the European Cup, so come on the 'Hornets' — sting the Continent!

Henry Milburn,
Newcastle-upon-Tyne.

I WOULD like to ask why Remi Moses has not been picked to play for this country?

He is a hard tackling workhorse and easily a better all-round player than Gordon Cowans of Villa.

Remi was consistent for Manchester United last season but the glory was stolen by his fellow midfielders Bryan Robson and Ray Wilkins.

So come on Bobby Robson and give the United star a chance.
Simon Prosser (15), Shirley, West Midlands.

Remi Moses — should be picked by England.

TERRACE TALK

BRILLIANT BRAZILIANS!

I WAS interested watching the televised Cup Final between Brazilian clubs Santos and Flamengo when they showed a close-up of the pitch at Sao Paulo.

It was mostly dirt and weeds with very little grass.

Yet even in those conditions the players were able to control the ball brilliantly, pass accurately and cross the ball with pin point precision — something that a lot of English players cannot do even on excellent pitches.

Most English players would have moaned and refused to play on the pitch in question, but not the Brazilians.

Playing on that type of pitch every week might be the reason why the Brazilian national team is so skilful on good quality surfaces.

In addition, I would just like to point out that the cheapest seats to watch skilled players such as Zico and Junior cost the equivalent of 23p... about £5 cheaper than the cheapest seats for an England game?

Simon Chennell (13), Godalming, Surrey.

WHAT a refreshing change it is to see a Chairman and his board keep faith with a manager instead of taking the easy way out and sacking him.

I'm referring to the Chelsea board which has taken injuries and suspensions into consideration and given John Neal their full support despite Chelsea's disastrous season in which they were almost relegated.

Perhaps this will at last give some stability to a club which has had too many managers.

Ken Bates and Co. are a tribute to the game.

Keith Hughes, Millwall, London.

● Obviously Chelsea have learned their lesson from past experience...

I WOULD like to congratulate England manager Bobby Robson on the marvellous job he has done since taking over from Ron Greenwood.

I have one criticism though. He keeps chopping and changing the side around!

I would also like to congratulate him for bringing Glenn Hoddle into the side for the matches with Northern Ireland and Scotland.

Bobby should pick a team like this and stick with it:

Shilton, Neal, Sansom, Hoddle, Martin, Butcher, Robson, Wilkins, Woodcock, Francis, Barham. Subs: Clemence, Osman, Lee, Mabbitt, Mariner. Steven Howard, Oulton Broad, Lowestoft, Suffolk.

● He chopped and changed

Grobelaar there would be no point in the Rush's of this world thumping goals in at the other end.

So why not show a little appreciation for the unsung heroes of the game. Let's hear it for defenders

Tracy Watson (15), 24 Tollgate Road, Southam, Warks.

I WOULD like to pay tribute to the England side which beat Scotland 2-0 at Wembley in this year's British Championships.

Although I am a Scotland fan I have to admit England were by far the better side.

Every player played his part, especially Graham Roberts and Terry Butcher who dealt with Charlie Nicholas as if he wasn't there.

Laura Hooker (14), St Leonards on Sea, East Sussex.

● Charlie Nicholas was playing then!

HOW much longer will Gary Bailey have to wait for England's goalkeeping jersey?

In my opinion, if Bailey is to be England's 1986 World Cup 'keeper — as he is widely tipped to be — then he should be getting as much international experience as possible now.

Peter Shilton and Ray Clemence have had their day. England boss Bobby Robson should bring in Bailey to give him the right international grounding.

Laura Smith, Morpeth, Northumberland.

GOLDEN GOOF

The picture below shows a jubilant Leeds team celebrating their 1974 Championship win. Among them (third from the left) is that well known spelling mistake Gordon McQUEEN. Shouldn't it be McQUEEN?

Paul Lavery, West Cornforth, Durham.

● You're right. Good of 'U' to spot it. Bet Gordon wasn't too happy though...

PROGRAMME PARADE

THE name of Stoke City may not have the same glamorous worldwide appeal as Liverpool, Manchester United or Tottenham, but Peter Wood is spreading the Potteries' gospel in a little corner of America.

His apartment in North Hollywood is a shrine to the small First Division club.

It's a blaze of red and white which acts as the ideal backcloth to a collection of more than 2,300 Stoke programmes, along with hundreds of commemorative souvenirs.

And he drives around the streets of California making no secret of the fact that he's a Stoke fan — his personalised car number plate bears the inscription — Stoke FC.

But what makes this story of the long distance Stoke fan even more remarkable is that he was born in London and lived most of his teenage life in the St Albans area before moving to America with his wife Carla three years ago.

Yet he struck up this passion for the unfashionable Midlands club, and, despite being across the other side of the Atlantic, he still manages to collect their programmes and follow their fortunes with the aid of his regular copy of Match Weekly.

It all started back in 1965 when Peter visited some friends in Stoke: "I saw Stoke play Liverpool while I was up there and subsequent visits to the area fueled my interest in the club," explains the computer company manager who is a long-time member of the London Stoke Supporters' Club and a member of the Association of Football Statisticians.

"Some fond memories include a 4-3 win at West Ham in 1967 after being 0-3 down with twenty minutes left and a win over Leeds in the 1973-74 season which ended their undefeated run of 28 games.

"I never had the privilege of seeing Sir Stanley Matthews in action for the club, but I have vivid recollections of players like Denis Smith, Gordon Banks, John Ritchie, Peter Shilton and Jimmy Greenhoff."

Peter, who started collecting programmes in 1963 following a visit to the Boy's and Girl's Exhibition in London, needs only 32 more programmes to complete a set of Stoke home and away from the last war.

And in addition to his Stoke collection he has around 1800 programmes of England internationals, Watford home and away and some from non-League sides St Albans and Dunstable.

"It never occurred to me not to continue collecting when I moved to America in January 1980. I enjoy the challenge of keeping my collection growing despite the distance, and I also collect statistics," he explains.

"In fact, a friend of mine in Cheshire and myself are collaborating on a book we hope to publish someday on the history of Stoke City.

"I receive regular programme lists from about eight dealers in England and I correspond regularly with other programme collectors.

"My very understanding parents handle all the forwarding of the programmes and keep the bank account straight when I send money orders home to them in St Albans."

Peter watched some North American Soccer action when he first moved to the States, but his interest has waned: "There is no longer any real interest in America in fact, both the teams based in Los Angeles closed down at the end of last season.

"I'm showing a little interest in the growing popularity of indoor soccer. The Mini-Indoor Soccer League appeals to many Americans because it's very fast."

It's nearly two years since Peter last saw his beloved Stoke in action and that was in a 2-3 defeat at West Ham, but his next visit to England is planned to coincide with the start of next season.

● Liverpool's score first in each case

JIMMY Case scored some valuable goals during his glittering Liverpool career, but none was more financially rewarding than his '£50,000 smacker' at Leeds four years ago.

That was the staggering sum the 1978/79 Championship-winning side collected from his goal in the 3-0 win at Elland Road that brought down the curtain on yet another triumphant term under Bob Paisley.

Liverpool, with the Championship crown having been securely locked away several weeks earlier, went into that final fixture needing two goals to reach the target of 84 and the £50,000 jackpot offered at the start of the season by the 'Sun' newspaper.

David Johnson tucked away goal number 83 and, before half-time, Jimmy struck 'gold' with that vital prize-winning score.

Johnson added a third goal for good measure in the second half but in relation to Jimmy's goal, it paled in significance.

Recalling that 'golden game', the current Brighton star says: "Although the goal target was at the back of our minds from the first whistle, we were not unduly worried about reaching that target because it was a long way off."

"But as the season wore on and we began to notch up a series of big wins, we realised it was within our grasp."

"It wasn't until we had clinched the title that we started seriously to consider it and, with two games to go, we needed three more goals."

"We only managed a 1-0 win at Middlesbrough in the last but one game, leaving us needing two more at Leeds in the final match.

"I was certainly delighted to score that second goal because I hadn't had much luck in front of goal that season.

"That took my League tally to seven, and three of them had come in one game against Bolton which was only the second hat-trick of my career."

In fact, almost half of Liverpool's 85-goal League total came from the strike force of Kenny Dalglish (21) and Johnson (16).

Class

Says Jimmy: "Kenny really came into his own that season and showed his true class. Taking over from Kevin Keegan could not have been easy but Kenny was more than equal to the task.

"Although he has so much individual skill he's a great team player and very unselfish. He always makes himself available and is prepared to lay the ball off to team-mates if he can't have a go at goal himself."

It was little wonder that the ruthless Anfield Machine scooped the jackpot that season.

On no fewer than 14 times they scored three or more goals, and Tottenham, Norwich and Derby felt the full impact of their devastating attack.

Poor old Tottenham were totally bemused as Liverpool ran riot with a 7-0 victory; Norwich were hit for six, and Derby conceded five

There was never any doubting

THE Liverpool success story rolls on. Here we re-live the 1978-79 Championship triumph through the eyes of local boy Jimmy Case, the man with a power-packed punch in both feet whose goal at Leeds in the last match of the season was worth £50,000 to the club.

The deadly duo. That was Liverpool strike force Kenny Dalglish (left) and David Johnson, here celebrating the Championship success of 1978-79.

that Liverpool would take the title back to Merseyside. They opened up with ten wins and a draw in their first eleven matches before losing their unbeaten tag at, of all places, Everton.

They were unbeaten at Anfield, lost just four games on their travels and conceded a miserly 16 goals in 42 matches.

Jimmy believes that much of the credit for that incredible defensive record should go to England goalkeeper Ray Clemence.

Brilliant

"He had a marvellous season and, although he was rarely called upon, when the need arose he was always on form," recalls Jimmy.

"He had the good habit of making brilliant saves at crucial times and he earned us no end of points. It was very reassuring to know that Ray was the last line of defence."

Anfield hasn't been the most charitable of institutions in recent years, and that 1978-79 season was no exception.

JIMMY'S CRACKER GIVES CHAMPIONS £50,000 FLOURISH

"Teams feared coming to Anfield because we had the reputation of giving absolutely nothing away, and that season we conceded just four goals at home," adds Jimmy.

"In many of the games that season at Anfield, particularly against Tottenham, we produced some of our best football for some time... it must have been great stuff to watch.

"That display in the 7-0 drubbing of Spurs was tremendous. Everything we did turned to gold and every move seemed to end with a goal, or a near miss.

"My Brighton team-mate Neil McNab, who played for Spurs that day, told me that he spent most of the match just watching us play, we were that good.

"The understanding between all the players was excellent, even people like Alan Kennedy and Alan Hansen who had only just joined, fitted in perfectly."

Despite their 'walk-over' in the League, Liverpool didn't find it so easy in cup competitions.

They fell at the first hurdle in the League Cup at Sheffield United and went out to Nottingham Forest in the First Round of the European Cup.

"We knew when we were drawn against Forest that it was going to be difficult, and that's how it turned out," he says.

"They beat us 2-0 at the City Ground and then held us to a goalless draw at Anfield. It was very disappointing because we had chances to have won both legs.

"Having won the trophy the previous year, we were very keen to retain it, but at least we could concentrate on the League in a bigger way."

Replay

Another disappointment followed a few months later when Liverpool lost in the Semi-Finals of the FA Cup against Manchester United, losing 1-0 in a replay.

"After going so far in the competition it was a bitter blow being knocked out at the final hurdle before Wembley," says Jimmy.

"But the disappointment was forgotten a few weeks later when we went on to clinch the League Championship which Liverpool have always considered the most important trophy to win."

YOUNG Wolves centre-half John Pender (left) won't be facing Sheffield Wednesday striker John Pearson in League action next season. He hopes to catch himself much bigger fish in the First Division leaving John battling again in Division Two West German striker Horst Hrubesch — has publicly declared his distaste for Italian football.

FROM THE HORST'S MOUTH . . .

NEW Standard Liège striker Horst Hrubesch caused a storm when he revealed his reasons for rejecting big money advances from Italian clubs.

The West German international told a group of Italian journalists that the only thing he liked about Italy was spaghetti.

"I have never taken seriously any of the offers that have come my way from Italian clubs and that is simply because I don't like them or the football atmosphere," says the former Hamburg forward.

"I don't like the mentality, the aggressive manner and style and the way the sport is understood. I think there are too many rumours, too many manipulations and too much force."

"No, Italy is not for me at all. The only thing I like about Italy is the spaghetti — but that is not enough of a reason to go there and work, is it?"

TIME RUNS OUT FOR DINO . . .

IT'S all over for the evergreen Italian goalkeeper Dino Zoff. The brilliant 41-year-old Juventus and Italy 'keeper is hanging up his gloves for good. And that's his own decision.

Italy manager Enzo Bearzot persuaded his World Cup-winning captain to play again in the European Championship game against Sweden.

But after the humiliating 2-0 defeat, Zoff told the boss: "That's it for me. The result is not the reason. I was part of the team that played so badly and I must take my share of the blame. It is just that I honestly believe the time has come for me to stop. And that includes playing for Juventus."

FALCAO SHOCK

Brazil star to quit Italian champions

BRILLIANT Brazilian Roberto Falcao is to quit Italian Champions Roma.

The World Cup star rocked the club by announcing through his agent that he has decided to reject their offer of a new contract.

The news will send all biggest clubs in the world scrambling for their cheque books and bank managers.

It seemed certain that Falcao, one of the most impressive players in last year's World Cup Finals, would stay with Roma after they had won the title for the first time in 41 years.

But the shock news was revealed by his Brazilian adviser and friend Christoforo Colombo.

He said: "It is finished. He is leaving. Falcao is leaving Roma."

Colombo had conducted the negotiations on Falcao's behalf. The final offer, rejected by the Brazilian, was said to be worth around £120,000 a year.

■ MEMORIES of the great days of players like Eusebio must have come flooding back to Benfica when a 1-0 away win over Portimonense won them the Portuguese title for the 25th time. That was at last some consolation for losing to Belgian side Anderlecht in the UEFA Cup Final.

■ FRENCH World Cup star Didier Six is leaving his West German club Stuttgart to return home and join Mulhouse on a one-year contract. Mulhouse were relegated to the Second Division last season.

■ EXILED Belgian defender Eric Gerets reckons France will be clear favourites to win next year's European Championships. The new AC Milan player says: "It will be France because they are playing at home and that is a tremendous advantage. They have some terrific players too, like Platini and Giresse, who I think is one of the classiest players in the world."

■ ACE goalkeeper Georgio Chinaglia, the former Italian international, is set to leave New York Cosmos after leading a U.S. backed bid to take over his former club Lazio of Rome who are in deep financial trouble.

■ BELGIAN side Antwerp have signed midfielder player Jozsef Pacik from Hungarian club Raba for £100,000 — a record fee for an Hungarian player.

■ JUVENTUS recovered from the disappointment of their European Cup Final flop by slamming Italian Champions Roma 5-0 on aggregate to reach the Semi-Finals of the Italian Cup.

'Welsh were robbed' — NEV SOUTHALL

LESS than four years ago, Neville Southall was employed as a bricklayer... now he's building himself a reputation for being as safe as houses.

After joining Bury in 1980, he moved to Everton a year later and has now become the first choice goalkeeper in Mike England's Welsh squad.

A fortnight ago he was picked to face the Brazilians in a friendly at Ninian Park and underlined why he's the Welsh number one.

But despite his tremendous performance in his country's 1-1 draw, Neville refuses to admit that his place in the side is secure.

He says: "In David Felgate and Andy Dibble we have two of the best young goalkeepers in the country and they will be pushing me hard all the way.

"My experiences at Everton have taught me not to take anything for granted and I'm just happy to be a member of Mike England's squad."

Neville was unable to command a regular place in the Everton side last season, losing his place early on to Jim Arnold.

He returned to the team for the last few games and his performances prompted Mike BRAZIL came to Ninian Park, Cardiff, in a blaze of glory... but left scorched by the fiery Welsh dragons.

'Match' talked to the man expected to be under fire, Wales 'keeper Neville Southall, and gets the verdicts of four top stars about the Brazilian flop...

Plus Alan Davies, the Manchester United winger, talks about his dramatic rise to soccer stardom, culminating in his selection for Wales' showpiece friendly.

England to include him in the Welsh side for the Brazil game.

"I was delighted to be picked for that one... it's a chance of a lifetime to play against the Brazilians, who are probably the best in the world," says Neville.

"Despite the talk about Eder and other powerful strikers of the ball in the Brazil side, I wasn't worried about facing them and really enjoyed the experience."

Neville was in action far less than he expected but he was called upon to make a magnificent save from a 30-yard Eder free-kick.

"He hit it with a lot of power, but the save wasn't as difficult as it may have looked," he says modestly. "The ball never moved and I had no difficulty in turning it round the post — apart from that, I had little to do.

"The lads were marvellous and deserved to win. I thought we were robbed. Their goal should never have been allowed because we had a man down injured at the time and all our players stopped."

"But the referee allowed play to go on and, when the ball came to Isidoro on the far post, our defenders were out of position and I had no chance with the shot."

"That was one of our best performances for a long time and it has to give us confidence for our next batch of European Championship games."

Few people who saw the game would disagree that Brazil did not deserve a draw and, below, four top stars talk frankly about the team once boasted as the best in the world...

BRAZIL-THE

ANDY KING — felt let down.

ANDY KING (Everton)

"I HAD been looking forward to seeing the Brazilians all week... but was totally let down.

I can only think that they weren't really bothered about the game and didn't give 100 per cent, otherwise my illusions of them have been destroyed.

The Brazilians represent everything the game is about, yet they hardly gave us a glimpse of the kind of football we know they can play.

I was very disappointed in them and I felt sorry for the 35,000 fans who paid good money to watch them.

We never saw any of the touches which delighted us during the World Cup and they created very few chances. In fact I think they only had about three shots on target.

They were weakened slightly, but by the same token, Wales also had some of their best players missing, so there's no excuse there... it must have been the cold weather."

DAVID MOSS — very disappointed.

DAVID MOSS (Luton)

"I WAS very disappointed with the Brazilians... they bore little resemblance to the side we saw in the World Cup.

Obviously they were weakened by the absence of Zico, Falcao and Junior, but they didn't perform like the Brazil we have come to know.

They weren't half as skilful as they

KENNY HIBBITT — praise for the Welsh.

KEN HIBBITT (Wolves)

"I THINK we were all expecting too much of the Brazilians.

Everyone thought they would produce a dazzling display, like we saw in the World Cup, but that was never the case.

And full credit for that must go to the Welsh, who made it very difficult for the Brazilians to play their natural game.

They hustled and chased for the whole 90 minutes and few could argue that they had the better of the game. We can all learn a lesson from that performance, which has got to be a great morale-booster for the Welsh.

GERRY ARMSTRONG — thought Brazil badly missed their stars.

GERRY ARMSTRONG (Watford)

"I THINK the Brazilians approached the game in Cardiff in the wrong frame of mind.

Like Northern Ireland, Wales are not a big name in footballing terms and Brazil were probably over-confident.

But as we showed in the World Cup Finals, fighting spirit can overcome any lack of skill, and Wales proved it again last Sunday.

From the first whistle, the Welsh hustled the Brazilians, which is how Northern Ireland have got results against big name sides, and they never allowed them to settle down.

I was very impressed with Wales, particularly young Jeff Hopkins, and they were desperately unlucky not to have achieved what would have been an historic win.

Having seen the Brazilians in Spain, I felt they were the best footballing nation in the world... but they didn't look it against Wales.

Naturally they missed the likes of Zico and Falcao, who are world class players, and I think with them in the side it would have been a different game."

ALAN Davies looked back on the most eventful weeks of his life and declared: "I still can't believe all that's happened to me."

Little more than a month ago, 21-year-old Alan was battling away in the reserves at Manchester United hoping and praying for the chance to make a name for himself.

And it came in dramatic fashion. With only three first team appearances under his belt, the young Welshman suddenly found himself in Ron Atkinson's side for the FA Cup Final.

His performance in the 2-2 draw against battling Brighton made him an obvious choice for the replay a few days later when he played his part in United's crushing 4-0 victory.

Within a week of picking up a Cup Winners' medal, Alan made his international debut for Wales against Northern Ireland and last week played in the friendly against Brazil.

He says: "It's been an amazing month for me... everything has happened so fast. Now I just want to sit back for a couple of weeks and absorb it all."

It's incredible to think that Alan has played in more cup finals and internationals than he has League games, and has achieved more in a month than most players do throughout their careers.

"I've been very lucky," he says. "I've really only got my chances because of other people's misfortunes. I was only picked for the Cup Final because Steve Coppell had been ruled out and new signing Laurie Cunningham was unfit.

"And the same sort of thing happened with Wales. A number of first choice players were unavailable and, as a result, Mike England picked me."

Alan's rapid rise from obscurity is like something plucked from a 'Roy of the Rovers' annual... but it could all have been so different.

Before his dramatic emergence onto the soccer scene, Alan was 'plugging away' in the reserves at Old Trafford wondering where his future lay.

He explains: "The way things were going I honestly thought I would be leaving Manchester United at the end of the season."

"In five years at the club, I had played just one League game — against Southampton last season — and with my contract due to expire I thought my days were numbered."

"In fact, Ron Atkinson said to me at the beginning of last season that I had to prove myself in the next 12 months, or I could be on my way."

"It was really a make-or-break season for me and, with only a few weeks to go, I was still in the reserves and the situation didn't look as though it was going to improve."

"I was beginning to think I wasn't going to make it at United and that I would be better off at another club where I could play first team football... I knew I was good enough."

"But then suddenly I was picked for the League game against Swansea, when I came on as substitute, and then played two more games before the Cup Final."

It wasn't until the day before the Final that Alan, who has been at Old Trafford since leaving school, knew he was in the team.

He says: "Laurie Cunningham, who was favourite to play, broke down in training and I can recall Ron Atkinson telling me 'You're in son'."

"I couldn't believe it... after all, I had only played in a few League games and had only played in front of a big crowd at Old Trafford on one occasion."

"I was very nervous beforehand but the experienced players in the side like Bryan Robson and Ray Wilkins, who had seen it all before, helped me a lot."

"I was more nervous about the replay than I was the first game, but Alan Davies — played in more cup finals and internationals than League games.

after we took the lead I really began to enjoy it. It was a great occasion and walking up the steps to collect my medal and looking round at all the fans was something I will never forget."

Flushed with Cup Final success Alan went on to make his international debut a few days later against Northern Ireland in the British Championship.

"I didn't have a very good game, but manager Mike England kept faith in me for the Brazil game at Ninian Park," he says.

"Playing against probably the best country in the world was a marvellous experience and one I'll remember for a long time."

"The whole side played well and we were desperately unlucky not to win. Nobody gave us a hope in hell before the game, but Bryan Flynn got us off to a great start and we grew in confidence all the time."

Despite all that has happened to him over the last month or so, Alan is not getting carried away and is determined to keep his feet firmly on the ground.
